Flash flooding hits Powell, Clay City hard

4" fall in two torrential rounds of rain

By JAMES COOK
Times Editor

When it rains it pours. At least that is the way the old saying goes. But in early hours of last Friday it was very much a true statement in western Powell County. With a radar estimate of nearly three inches falling in an hour, flash flooding became a nightmare for many sleeping residents. A second round of one inch rainfall in an hour on Friday afternoon led to some rescues.

The deluge began just after 2 a.m. Within an hour creeks were on the rise and when the storm seemed to take its time moving along, the downpour made matters worse. A Flash Flood Warning was issued by the National Weather Service Office in Jackson at 4 a.m.

It did not take long for the Red River and creeks in the Clay City area all the way to Paint Creek, just north of Stanton, to start rising. Main Street in Clay City between the Family Dollar Store and Dairy Queen was shut down due to high water. Adams Ridge was blocked off again and the waters rushed across the Mountain Parkway at Exit 16, leaving behind a slick and muddy reminder of the event.

Roads around Clay City were shut down. There was a report of part of Echo Hollow Road being washed away along with a culvert. But that may have involved another road in that area.

Powell County Emergency Management Assistant Director Mike Sparks told the Times that part of the pavement on Paint Creek Road near Shepherd's Printing was "bubbling up" and that one lane "sounded hollow" when they stomped it. A truck was found along a creek behind a home on Highway 213 as well, but there was no one inside. The state and county road crews were out clearing debris and checking road conditions throughout the morning. The waters rose so fast for one Clay City man he barely escaped as his trailer was washed away by the raging Brush Creek.

Lester Robinson lost everything he had, except for the clothes on his back and his dog, Feisty. It was Feisty that may have saved his life.

"I had come in after getting off work at 2 a.m. and sat down, drank an Ale-8, then went on to bed," Robinson said as he watched his home and belongings rush down Brush Creek. "The water wasn't up when I came in. My dog kept acting weird, so the last time it jumped out of bed I took a look and the water was up to the trailer. I got my things and my dog and as I tried to step out the stairs were gone."

Robinson said he and Feisty got out, waded through the raging water just in time.

"About the time we got out, the trailer started shifting and floating," he said.

"The trailer ended up floating about 200 feet, maybe a little more, before it became Flash flooding last Friday washed away a trailer belonging to Lester Robinson. It got wedged against a bridge before crews cleared it and it was swept away. Robinson lost everything he owned. The view looking from the Parkway towards Clay City indicated how serious the situation had become.

Congressman Barr holds 'town hall meeting' with Powell's seniors

By TOSHA BAKER
Times Staffwriter

If you want to get to know a community, get to know the senior citizens in that community. They know the history, they know the issues at hand and they like to talk to anyone who will listen as they try to find answers. Last week, they got some answers. Sixth District Congressman Andy Barr addressed some of Powell County's senior citizens' concerns at a town hall meeting in the Senior Citizens Center in Stanton City Park last Wednesday.

Barr began the meeting by addressing the Medicare Access and Chip Reauthorization Act of 2015. The previous Medicare system had a flawed formula on how Medicare would reimburse doctors. This piece of legislation fixed the payment system and now guarantees seniors that they will have access to physicians under Medicare. The Medicare program is what provides healthcare to most seniors.

"We still have a problem in terms of future generations," Barr said. "I think for this generation Medicare is fine, it is safe, it is solvent, but for younger people like me, Medicare is not going to be there for us unless we fix it for younger people."

He then discussed the Mercury and Toxic Air Standards that had been shot down by the Supreme Court in a 5 to 4 decision on Monday. This rule had already been imposed on the power plants that provide energy to Powell County.

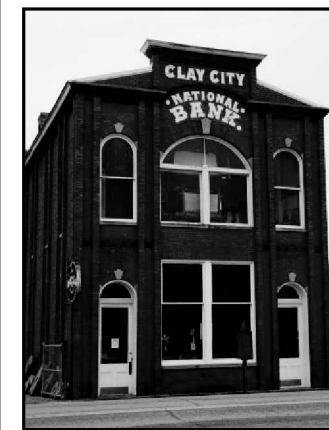

"They've already retrofitted those power plants with very expensive technology in order to come into compli-

AmVets show is a success, Hillbilly Showdown rescheduled

Despite all the wet weather the day before, the AmVets Post #67 held their annual Patriot's Day & Fireworks Show last Saturday.

The crowds did appear to be a little smaller, according to those who attended or lived nearby. But the entertainment, music and vendors were on hand for those who did attend.

This year's fireworks show was believed to be the longest in duration for several years and the crowd seemed to appreciate it.

"That was the longest I've seen here in a long time," said Dana Estep, who watched the fireworks with her son, Adam, and some friends.

The Mt. Park Dragway, who usually holds an awesome firework show, held off this year. The torrential rains on Friday canceled their huge July 4th Weekend event, The Hillbilly Showdown. The event has been rescheduled for Aug. 14-16, with the fireworks display set for Aug. 15. You can check out their website for more details..

Possible DUI report ends in two arrests including convicted felon with a firearm

TIMES STAFF REPORT

Officers never know what they will encounter when they make a traffic stop. It could be a grandmother who may be lost or a convicted felon with a handgun. For Clay City Police Sgt. Billy Rice on Monday it was the latter.

Rice was notified by off-duty Chief Kirk that a possible DUI driver was traveling eastbound on the Mountain Parkway. He caught up with the vehicle just east of Stanton on the Mountain Parkway and made a traffic stop.

During the course of the stop, Rice asked the driver, 51 year old Billy Combs of Campton, to exit the vehicle. When Combs exited the vehicle, Rice observed a black 9mm handgun laying in the drivers seat that Combs was sitting on.

Rice detained Combs and investigated further. He discovered that Combs was a convicted felon and that the gun was reported stolen to the Kentucky State Police in Hazard.

Rice arrested Combs charging him with being a convicted felon in possession of a handgun, receiving stolen property (firearm), failure to wear seat belts, failure of non-owner to maintain required insurance and failure to produce insurance card.

Rice also arrested the passenger in the vehicle, 38 year old Christina Stamper of Campton, for two outstanding bench warrants from Powell County District Court. Stamper was also charged with possession of drug paraphernalia - buy/possess for a syringe that was found in her purse. Stamper admitted that she used the syringe to inject drugs into her body.

Both subjects were lodged into the Powell County Detention Center.

Division of Water gives tips for a safe and healthy summer on and in the water

Division of Water, Public Health offer tips for a safe and healthy summer enjoying Kentucky's water resources

Last weekend, and all summer long, many Kentuckians will flock to one of the many rivers, lakes and creeks across the state to boat, fish, swim, canoe or otherwise enjoy the water. The Kentucky Division of Water (DOW) and the Kentucky Department for Public Health (DPH) offer these safety tips to help you safely enjoy Kentucky's abundant water resources.

Over the past several years, concerted efforts have been made to improve the quality of Kentucky's natural waterways. Many federal, state and local programs have been implemented to reduce water pollution from various sources, including those that are industrial, residential and agricultural in nature. Reducing pollutants is critical to providing safe recreational opportunities for the citizens of the Commonwealth.

Despite many water quality improvements, the potential for human health risks continue to exist in any waterbody. The DOW and the DPH advise following these safety guidelines when enjoying Kentucky's rivers, streams, lakes and reservoirs. By using a common sense approach, the risks of experiencing water-derived health issues can be greatly decreased.

DOW and DPH recommend that the public follow the guidelines below to reduce health risks:

1. Avoid ingesting or inhaling water.
2. Thoroughly clean hands and other areas that have come in contact with water.
3. Avoid allowing open wounds to have direct contact with the water.
4. Avoid areas where swimming or harmful algal bloom (HAB) advisories have been issued.
5. Avoid areas with obvious odors or surface scums.
6. Avoid getting in waters after heavy rainfall events, especially in dense residential, urban and agricultural areas.
7. Avoid areas below wastewater treatment facility outfalls, animal feedlots, straight pipes or other obvious sources of pollution.
8. Restrict pets and livestock from drinking the water if a bright green or blue-green surface scum is present.

For more information concerning the quality of Kentucky's water resources, the public can access the Kentucky Water Health Portal. Information such as advisories and impairments can be found at <http://watermaps.ky.gov/WaterHealthPortal>.

ance with this Mercury Rule," Barr said. "You as rate payers are already paying for that, because it's already banked into your utility bill every month."

Barr said this should send a message to the US Environmental Protection Agency for future regulations. Before enacting these regulations they need to consider the cost to our economy and fixed income seniors, because the cost of utility bills could rise if certain regulations go into effect.

Barr voted on a bill that he and Congressman Ed Whitfield from Western Kentucky sponsored, called the Ratepayer Protection Act. This bill would give Kentucky the power to opt out of an EPA regulation if it proves to have a negative impact on the ratepayer's electric bill.

Barr then discussed the reauthorization of the Older Americans Act. A lot of the funding for the Senior Citizen Center comes through this act. Barr said he is very supportive of the reauthorization.

"The reason why reauthorization is important is because we can improve the programs," Barr said. "We can make it more efficient, and we can make sure that the program is structured based on the current needs."

Barr reassured the crowd by saying that even though the Older Americans Act has not been reauthorized, it is not going to cut off the funding.

Barr also touched on the Honors flight in the fall. The flight transports World War II veterans from Lexington to Washington D.C. for free, so they can view the Korean Memorial, World War II

Memorial and the Iwo Jima Memorial.

The V.A. Accountability and Choice Act was also discussed. Barr said Veterans should get a white choice card in the mail. If they have been put on a V.A. waiting list for more than 30 days, the choice card is supposed to allow the veterans to go to a non V.A. health-care provider of their choice and get reimbursed for the non V.A. care.

Barr said even with the choice card the V.A. is still having a long waiting list problem, even longer than jammed against a bridge. The call came in to dispatch that the trailer was shifting and people were trapped on the other side. Fire and law enforcement officials arrived at the scene to find the trailer's roof had ripped partially off and was on top of the bridge, while the trailer itself was underneath.

A backhoe was brought in by Robbie Richardson and he cleared the roof from the bridge that let the rest of the trailer and Robinson's already destroyed belongings float down the creek. The bridge reportedly seemed to be intact and operational.

Powell County, like most of Kentucky, has been hit with day-after-day of rainfall for over a week. Many of those rainfalls have come from fast moving, but hard falling rains. The ground is saturated and with more rain expected until late this week, any heavy rains could cause some flooding issues.

As for Robinson, he said he would be staying with his sister for the time being. "I didn't have much, but it was mine," he said, "I'm just glad this little rascal woke me up." Robinson gave his buddy Feisty a good hug.

Sparks said that the Red Cross would be notified to see if they could help Robinson.

The second round came quick and hard. Fast rising water shut down Black Creek Road (Highway 11) north of Clay City, as the torrential rainfall hit. The roadway was shut down as several inches of water rolled across at several points. Some residents were stuck in homes on the other side of the creek for a short time.

Meanwhile a call for help came in from the Little Brush Creek and Pilot Knob areas. As Brush Creek began to rise again, some hikers were trapped by the water. Fire crews were able to rescue the hikers, according to reports.

A church located behind the reservoir was knocked off its foundation by the swift currents as the flash flooding hit hard. A large section of Popular Bluff Road was also washed out by the rains and flooding. Many driveways, especially those that have bridges across creeks, were hit hard. A calmer weekend helped, as county officials were still assessing the damages.

the waiting list was when the V.A scandal in Phoenix occurred.

"This is not about they don't have enough money," Barr said. "We just gave them another 16 billion dollars to deal with the wait list, we gave them 10 billion dollars to put into effect the choice program, and they still have waiting lines."

Barr then offered help to any who was stuck on a VA wait list.

"I'm not promising we're going to solve every problem, but we'll do our best," Barr said.

Barr also spoke of the Dodd-Frank Act, and how its regulations hurt the economy as well as community banks like the ones found in Powell County. Barr also said that this act takes the bankers away from giving charitable contributions to the communities and giving out loans to those in need of them.

"I believe that the answers really rest in the people, that's why I do these town hall events, because I like to hear from you all," Barr said. "I think there's a lot more common sense in this room than there is in Washington so it helps me."

After his speech Barr stayed and addressed some further individual questions before leaving. The crowd erupted with excitement as everyone discussed the event while eating their lunch.

"I think it helped them a lot, they always like people coming and talking to them about their concerns," Thaleena Allen, Director of the Senior Citizen Center said. "I thought it went well."

News from the Red River Museum

How long has it been since you and your family have visited the following attractions in Powell and surrounding counties? #1 Natural Bridge State Resort Park, #2 Red River Gorge and Sky Bridge, #3 Nada Tunnel, #4 The Fitchburg Furnace on Hwy. 975, #5 Pilot Knob Nature Preserve and #6 Red River Museum and Slade Depot.

When I was growing up in Menifee County, the only time we came over to visit these attractions was when we had visitors from out of state. We never seem to appreciate what we have and look for pleasures in other counties and states.

We were recently given a very unusual donation of a “drum churn” which was used to churn “homemade” butter. It looks like a short whiskey barrel on a stand with a lock down lid. The churn has a handle on the side which is used to turn the barrel over and over until it makes butter. Those of you who are familiar churning butter will remember several kinds of churns. One of the old fashioned “stone jar” churn which sat on the floor and had a dasher; there was a big gallon jar with a big paddle inside; as a last resort, a half-gallon jar which you shook up and down until it turned to butter. However, you were not finished yet. You had to “work” the butter down until you got all the liquid out. Add a little salt and you had a pat or bowl of butter. If you wanted to get fancy you could put it in a butter press and put a design on the top of it. As an added treat, you will have some wonderful buttermilk to drink with your meals.

The Red River Valley D.A.R. meets here at the museum every Sunday from 2 to 4 at which time the members are here to help with genealogical research. This includes various information found in court documents, census records, cemetery books, etc. This service is free and the ladies are very willing to help.

Please come and visit us. We are open 12-5 p.m every Saturday and Sunday, May through October.

I was hoping to make this just a short column to discuss a few things on my mind. So bear with me just a few minutes.

First of all I want to say that the school board meetings have been, shall we say, more exciting of late. With more of the public showing up and staying to watch how the board works, or even just to voice their opinion, it has been a new experience.

Of course I have heard terms I usually don't hear at meetings and there is the ever increasing sense that a more watchful public may be getting involved, but that is OK. That is what should happen at every meeting for every council and board. The voters asking questions and demanding answers from their elected officials. And those officials should have to listen, as long as things are within reason.

With that said, let me move on to an issue we should have seen coming. This week at the Stanton City Council meeting the Fairness Ordinance will once again be discussed. And though I try to remain neutral on most issues for the newspaper's sake, this one I have to speak out on.

Now don't get too excited. You may not like what I have to say.

First of all, since the Supreme Court's ruling two weeks ago about same-sex marriages, there has been a lot of bitterness and intolerance on both sides. That has to stop. NO good can come from constant bickering, it never has.

churches and Christians, as I assume those who attend those churches are Christians. That would make this a "Christian County" one would think.

But there is also too much division between the churches over denominational issues or theologies. The simple answer to those problems is this: there is one God and one Bible. As long as we follow that, how can we go wrong. Sure we'll make mistakes and commit sins, the word says we will. But forgiveness and love is what God is all about.

One sin is no worse than any other, God sees them all, wants us to move away from those ways and come to Him. That means we have to be able to show love as well, to everyone – yes I said everyone.

The main point I am trying to make is this: If we truly showed the love of God to others, treated others like the Bible says we should and truly become a God-fearing, Christian county, than we would be treating everyone fairly anyway. Therefore a Fairness Ordinance would not be needed at all.

Now this is just my opinion, but I believe the "Love Thy Neighbor" lesson I have been discussing here can be found in Matthew 23:39 and Mark 12:31.

We do not have to support things we do not believe in and we do not have to condone anything. We may be ridiculed, called intolerant or hated because we stick to our faith. But we have to exercise love at all times. Because we do have to follow God's commandments and what is that old saying, "If Jesus said it, I believe and its so." There are no exceptions to the commandment or God's love.

I'm just saying . . .

KY Attorney General

As your Attorney General, I have always kept my promise to push back on the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) proposed policies and plans that would cost Kentucky jobs and hurt Kentucky families. And I'm pleased that our efforts in the Office of the Attorney General to fight these overly burdensome and overreaching regulations are making a real difference.

AG: EPA decision is a big win for Kentucky

The U.S. Supreme Court's recent decision to overturn the EPA's air pollution rules is a direct result of a lawsuit that I filed with 22 of my fellow Attorneys Generals, and the decision is a big win for Kentucky.

The Court ruled that the EPA acted "unreasonably" when it failed to consider costs in developing a new regulation that required existing power plants to retrofit their emissions systems at great expense to Kentucky ratepayers and business owners. Simply put, this regulation—known as the MATS regulation—would have cost Kentucky jobs and raised electricity rates for Kentuckians. That's why I'm so proud of my office's work on this case and the Court's decision that resulted from it.

For the first time, the Supreme Court reigned in President Obama's EPA in a way that truly matters to Kentucky. Evidence presented to the Court by Kentucky and other states indicated that power plants around the country—including those here in Kentucky—would bear costs of $9.6 billion per year if this regulation went unchecked. Kentucky's historically low energy rates are critical to keeping Kentucky competitive and attracting jobs to the Commonwealth, and that kind of price tag would seriously damage our economy and hinder job growth.

Time and again, I have stood with Kentucky's coal industry against the EPA.

In fact, I'm proud to be the only Democratic Attorney General in the country who has sued the EPA to try to stop their proposed job-killing coal regulations known as the Clean Power Plan. And, as your Attorney General, I'm going to keep suing them, because coal-mining jobs are good-paying jobs in our Eastern and Western Kentucky counties, and on policies that hurt our coal communities, I will fight the EPA every step of the way.

Finally, this week, a group of fellow Attorneys General and I, again, sued the EPA over a new rule that we believe unlawfully gives the federal government more power to regulate farms, new development and streams. This rule could have serious consequences

SCOTUS preserves health care marketplaces; farm to school programs growing

By JOHN CRABTREE
Guest Columnist

The Supreme Court recently announced their decision upholding tax subsidies to help people purchase individual health insurance plans through a federal health insurance marketplace.

The Supreme Court made the right decision, preserving provisions of the Affordable Care Act that have been so crucial in providing access to more affordable health care coverage to millions of Americans. The court focused on interpreting the intent of Congress to create a health insurance marketplace for every eligible American, either through state exchanges or a federal exchange. Incentives for low- and moderate-income families to help make their insurance coverage more affordable was part of that intent.

The decision protects the progress we have made as a nation in providing affordable health insurance coverage for the millions of Americans who were uninsured prior to passage of the Affordable Care Act - 6.5 million Americans received tax credits to make their health coverage more affordable as of this year.

Clearly the ACA's health insurance marketplaces are working, making health insurance more affordable for families that use the marketplace. Those individuals would have seen their premiums increase by nearly 500% in the federal exchange states if the Supreme Court decision had gone the other way.

Now it's time to get on with providing affordable healthcare coverage for everyone and finishing the job of expanding Medicaid for the nearly 4 million low-income uninsured adults who fall into the "coverage gap" resulting from state decisions not to expand Medicaid.

Farm to school programs offer children better, fresher, more nutritious, and more local food choices that empower children and their families learn more about the food on their plates and make better food choices. These programs also help strengthen rural and small town economies by creating economic opportunities for local farmers and ranchers as well as local food processors.

As part of the upcoming Child Nutrition Act Reauthorization, Congress needs to build on the success of farm to school by strengthening and expanding the program's scope and by providing additional mandatory funding. Earlier this year, Representative Jeff Fortenberry (R-NE) and Representative Marcia Fudge (D-OH) took a huge step in that direction when they introduced the Farm to School Act to expand and strengthen the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Farm to School Grant programs. Senator Thad Cochran (R-MS) and Senator Patrick Leahy (D-VT) introduced a companion bill in the Senate.

As Rep. Fortenberry explained at the time, schools throughout Nebraska and across the U.S. are eagerly embracing local foods from local farms, with more than 10,000 schools participating in Farm to School programs nationally. The Farm to School Act will also expand existing USDA Farm to School Grant programs to include preschools and summer and after school programs. The Center for Rural Affairs applauds Rep. Fortenberry, Rep. Fudge, Senator Cochran and Senator Leahy for their effort to promote the use of fresh, locally produced food in even more schools and educational programs.

Guest Column: It is a different day in America

By GLENN MOLLETTE
Guest Columnist

Americans celebrate our Independence each 4th of July. We have all kinds of independence in our country. We are free to kill unborn babies and free to legally marry people of the same sex. We are also free from the ritual of prayer in public schools. We are free to take all kinds of drugs in America as long as we have a doctor's prescription. We are free now to sit home while the government feeds us and provides us with whatever necessary healthcare we need. We are also free to remain uneducated, unskilled and in poverty. Young adults stay home longer, watch television more and live in front of their computer world absorbed in Netflix movies or social media. Parents have to work longer at jobs that pay very little, that they no longer enjoy providing for people vegetating under their own roofs.

Voting doesn't seem to be all that necessary these days.

If there are any decisions to be made The Supreme Court will make them for us. Who cares about what each state has voted to do or what the majority of voting Americans might want. The Supreme Court is quite willing to dictate the law of the land and be our Supreme Being.

We are also willing to sit back and watch the world freely come into our country illegally. They are happy to escape from Iraq, Mexico, Burma, Central America, other parts of Asia and more. Our local community is flooded with people from Vietnam, China, South Korea and Mexico and more are coming every day.

One thing to remember is that people of the Muslim faith typically do not embrace Gay/Lesbian marriages or lifestyles. Generally immigrants from Central America and Mexico are often Catholic and oppose abortion and Gay/Lesbian lifestyles. Thousands of the Burmese population here in our country are strong Christians. As illegal immigrants eventually gain voting status they may vote a liberal agenda but then again don't be surprised if they don't. Many of them have very conservative backgrounds.

Benjamin Franklin said, "We have given you a republic if you can keep it." Honestly, I'm a little concerned about that. We continue to allow jobs to leave our country. There is an overall apathy about illegals entering our country. We spend trillions of dollars that we do not have on Middle East wars that have gone nowhere. We are led by a Congress kept in office by lucrative lobbyists and big money corporations. All the while we have black and white people fighting each other. My hat is off to the Mayor and people of Charleston, SC who have become a shining example to this nation.

Many Americans are disappointed in The Supreme Court. Please keep in mind that the Supreme Court's ruling does not mean that you personally have to date and marry people of the same sex. You do not have to have an abortion. Nor, do you have to agree or accept these behaviors. You can still pray anytime and anywhere. No one can take that away from you.

We are still free to worship God, hold up our Bibles, Book of Mormon or Koran and yell and scream as long as we don't keep our neighbors up all night. We are still free to be good citizens and try to influence our families, friends and people we know to be good Americans.

Please don't give up. However, it's a different day in America.

Guest Column: Expect fallout from Supreme Court’s Revolutionary Words

By RICHARD NELSON
Guest Columnist

On Friday, June 26, 2015, five U.S. Supreme Court Justices mysteriously discovered that the Fourteenth Amendment requires Kentucky and the rest of the country to recognize out-of-state same sex marriages and offer licenses to in-state same-sex couples seeking them. Chief Justice John Roberts duly congratulated the plaintiffs but noted the ruling had nothing to do with our nation's cherished legal document. "Celebrate..." Roberts told the victors "But do not celebrate the Constitution. It had nothing to do with it."

Dissenting judges noted that while the case was short on legal reasoning, it was long on policy arguments and political philosophy. The marriage ruling is not unlike the contortions used to uphold the Affordable Care Act by substituting the plain meaning of words and phrases for a political outcome. The law required health care exchanges to be "established by the states." The court ruled "established by the states" actually meant something else. An incensed Antonin Scalia responded, "[t]hat is of course quite absurd, and the Court's 21 pages of explanation make it no less so."

Scalia called the ACA ruling "applesauce" and "interpretive jiggery-pokery," and warned that context always matters because "it is a tool for understanding the terms of the law, not an excuse for rewriting them."

In Pixar's classic movie The Incredibles, the hyperactive superhero costume designer Edna Mode ignores objections from a superhero in hiding. "Yes, words are useless! Gobble-gobble-gobble-gobble-gobble! Too much of it, darling, too much!"

Gobble, gobble, gobble and just like that the court altered a controversial law's clear meaning one day in order to uphold it and spun a new constitutional right to same-sex marriage the next. Five Justices in Black Robes meet Edna Mode. Or The Emperor and his new clothes. We find that even dignified regalia and lofty words do little to cover naked and unashamed power grabs. Especially when they do a great disservice to the democratic process.

Both rulings were hailed as big wins for the political left but Americans from across the political spectrum lose when the rule of law is flaunted and the political process eviscerated. A rainbow flag might have been projected on the White House over the weekend, but the ruling paints a picture of utter disregard to the 13 states that constitutionally defined marriage between one man and one woman. Most other state laws and constitutional amendments (31 altogether at one time) were undone, not by the ballot box, but by judicial fiat. Breaching such legislative and legal boundaries is a slap in the face to the millions of voters who approved man/woman marriage by their vote and the countless others who engaged in various ways in this great experiment we call self-government.

When the vote and voice the people no longer matters, there is a great threat is to the idea of self-government—something we prepare to celebrate every July 4. Shot down is the idea of federalism—that which is not explicitly granted to the federal government belongs to the states. And up in smoke goes the Constitution which purportedly guarantees a right to same-sex marriage when it is completely silent on the issue altogether. It is preposterous for Justice Kennedy, who wrote the majority opinion in Obergefell, to pontificate about rights, liberties and human dignity without fixed moral or legal reference—something our founders relied on when they crafted the Declaration of Independence.

Already are the left leaning opinion columnists calling for tax-exempt status to be removed from churches and nonprofits who will not abide by the prevailing court-imposed public policy. So the question now is: will gay marriage revolutionaries be tolerant of beliefs they view to be immoral? Will gay rights activists respect equality of expression to their opponents and uphold their right to conscientiously object to the new definition of marriage?

If the victors refuse to afford tolerance, then cultural casualties will be many. Expect faith-based child welfare agencies like Kentucky's Sunrise Children's Services to be rejected from performing a great service the state and so many of its children depend upon. Funding is likely to be cut and their state license in jeopardy. Expect private university students at St. Thomas More and Asbury prohibited from participating in federal financial aid programs. Accreditation of religious schools is also on the line.

The Court's word on marriage is revolutionary—a far cry from our Founders word on the idea of self-government. After all, they appealed to Divine Providence, which religious conservatives believe to be the final Word on this matter.

Are schools failing students when it comes to teaching about money matters?

By JIM CHILTON
Guest Columnist

Something may be missing as high school seniors across America accept their diplomas this graduation season.

Those years of K-12 learning likely provided them opportunities to learn about historic figures, find Canada on a map and dissect a frog.

But superintendents at most school districts across the country have failed to include required classes in the core curriculum that would help ensure the teenagers are prepared to handle money wisely after they graduate.

The teens' financial illiteracy could prove costly throughout their lives as they make – or fail to make – decisions about purchasing an automobile, borrowing for college, taking out a mortgage, saving for retirement and racking up credit card debt.

It's a potentially disastrous scenario just waiting to unfold, says Jim Chilton, officer of the non-profit Society for Financial Awareness (www.sofausa.org).

"Most of our schools do little or nothing to teach students about financial literacy, even though it's a practical skill that will serve them all their lives," says Chilton, whose organization's mission is to "eliminate financial illiteracy, one community at a time."

SOFA does that by conducting free workshops and seminars for corporations, small businesses, government agencies, community colleges, libraries, churches or organizations.

Chilton says the need for his organization's services is great because so many adults, uneducated in the ways of money, struggle to understand finances and are prone to making decisions that prove costly to their bank accounts, retirement funds and investments.

What's especially frustrating, he says, is that the situation could easily be changed for the nation's future adults if schools made financial literacy a priority.

"Financial literacy really needs to be part of the core curriculum for every high school in America," Chilton says. "It's a subject our young people will have to deal with in life, whether they are prepared or not."

State education departments are making progress, but in fits and starts, and certainly not with the urgency that is called for, Chilton says. For example, New Jersey now requires that high school students take a course in economics and financial literacy to earn a diploma. The requirement began with the class of 2014.

"New Jersey has the right idea and is to be applauded," Chilton says. "But the education systems in most states are nowhere near where they need to be if we hope to have a nation of financially literate adults."

A 2013 study by the Center for Financial Literacy at Champlain College in Vermont gave 11 states an F because they had few or no requirements for personal finance education in high school.

Chilton's own home state, California, was among the F states, which to him is further demonstration of just how crucial SOFA's services continue to be.

"That's downright appalling," Chilton says. "We really need to turn the situation around. You can look at the spending and saving habits of so many Americans and the need for financial literacy just jumps out at you. People take on too much credit card debt. Many of them don't set aside money for emergencies. And about one-third of Americans have no retirement savings at all."

Just seven states earned an A in the Center for Financial Literacy study. Those top-performing states – Georgia, Idaho, Louisiana, Missouri, Tennessee, Utah and Virginia – require a standalone personal finance course or require that per

Saint Joseph Mount Sterling adds latest MRI technology to health care arsenal

Saint Joseph Mount Sterling, part of KentuckyOne Health, has added a new, top-of-the-line magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) system for diagnostic imaging.

MRI is an extremely accurate imaging technology that uses magnetic energy and radiofrequency waves to produce images that help radiologists to better diagnose disease and injuries.

The new equipment at Saint Joseph Mount Sterling offers many benefits to patients. The tunnel is wider and more open and, in many cases, the patients head will never be inside, which will help to reduce the effects of claustrophobia. In addition to a wider tunnel, it has a weight limit of up to 550 lbs., plus the latest in silent technology that will significantly reduce the noise that patients hear.

Another advantage is that the system is very fast, which means patients are on the table for a shorter period of time. In-turn, this will decrease patient wait-times for appointments to as little as two days.

For physicians, the new MRI has advanced software that will improve image quality and help the radiologists’ to better diagnose the spread of cancer or the extent of an injury. It will also help to eliminate interference that is caused by joint replacement hardware, which means that patients with hip or knee replacements will now have a better MRI study.

The new equipment will also allow for a number of new tests including:

- Small Bowel Enterography, which is an excellent way to evaluate the small intestine.
- Cholangiopancreatography, which is a non invasive imaging procedure to evaluate the ducts of the gallbladder and pancreas.
- High-resolution 3D angiography to look at arteries and veins inside the brain and other organs, without the use of IV contrast.

“Without a doubt, this MRI will be the best available in the area; we are fortunate and excited to have such technology so close to home for our patients,” said Tim Damron, medical imaging director, Saint Joseph Mount Sterling. “The diagnostic capabilities provided by this technology will greatly benefit physicians and their patients.”

Oscar Staples, two miles south of Clay City, has a flock of beautiful white Leghorns two months old. These birds are exhibition fowls and came from one of the most noted hatcheries and breeders in the country. He has some choice young cockerels which he is offering for sale. Winchester company receives funding for hemp processing facility

Atalo Holdings, Inc., a Kentucky corporation specializing in research, development and commercialization of industrial hemp, was approved for $500,000 in a combination of a Kentucky Agricultural Development Fund grant and loan money to purchase processing equipment for a new crushing/processing facility.

Earlier in June, working under the supervision of the Kentucky Department of Agriculture's Industrial Hemp Pilot Program, Atalo concluded importation and distribution of approximately 14,000 pounds of hemp seed for its 30 growers who will raise up to 545 acres of the crop across central Kentucky.

Atalo Holdings CEO Andrew R. Graves has been an advocate for hemp production for over 20 years as a Kentucky farmer.

"We are working with our expanding grower group to actively test multiple seed varieties and processes in the field that should result in better agronomy, better yields and a clear path to market. We have to remember that hemp is a 'new' crop and we're learning fast. This grant and the processing facility it funds should prove beneficial to Kentucky farmers.

"Kentucky was once know as the hemp capital of the world and we're on our way to restoring our hemp crop to prominence," said Graves.

Words of Wisdom: Famous quotes from Billy Graham

“Salvation is an act of God. It is initiated by God, wrought by God, and sustained by God.”

“Is it not arrogance or narrow-mindedness to claim that there is only one way of salvation or that the way we follow is the right way? I think not. After all, do we fault a pilot for being nar- row-minded when he follows the instrument panel [while] landing in a rainstorm? No, we want him to remain narrowly focused!”

“Salvation is always “good news.” It is news of God’s love and forgiveness—adoption into His family— fellowship with His people—freedom from the penalty of sin— liberation from the power of sin.”

“Forgiveness does not come easily to us, espe- cially when someone we have trusted betrays our trust. And yet if we do not learn to forgive, we will discover that we can never really rebuild trust.”

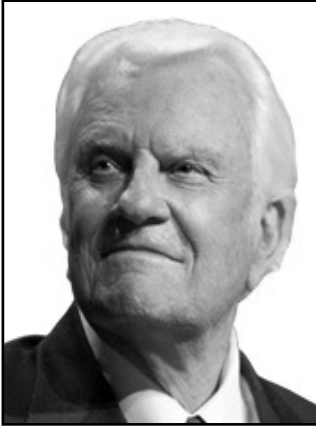

“We cannot ask forgiveness over and over again for our sins, and then return to our sins, expect- ing God to forgive us. We must turn from our practice of sin as best we know how, and turn to Christ by faith as our Lord and Savior.”

“When God forgives us and purifies us of our sin, He also forgets it. Forgiveness results in God dropping the charges against us.”

“Heaven is real and hell is real, and eternity is but a breath away.”

“God can use the fear that grips the hearts of men today to point them to eternal truths— the truth of God’s eternal judgment, and the truth of His eternal love.”

“Life is just a school- room with a glorious opportunity to prepare us for eternity.”

Said property shall be sold to raise the amounts hereinafter set forth, together with interest and the costs of the action, and upon the following terms and conditions:

(A) At the time of sale the successful bidder shall either pay cash or make a deposit of ten (10%) percent of the purchase price with the balance on credit for thirty (30) days UNLESS OTHERWISE SHOWN AT THE END OF A PARTICULAR SALE. Or the purchaser shall have the privilege of paying all or a greater portion thereof than ten percent (10%) at the date of purchase or of prepaying the balance of the purchase price with accrued interest. In the event the successful bidder desires or elects to credit the balance, he or she will be required to post bond and furnish an acceptable surety thereon. Said bond shall be for the unpaid purchase price and bear interest at the rate of twelve (12%) per annum from the date of sale until paid. The bond shall have the force and effect of a judgment in order to secure the payment of the balance of the purchase price and said bond shall constitute a prior and superior lien on the property until paid. No bond or earnest month shall be required in the event that the Plaintiffs hereto shall be the purchasers and the bid is less than their adjudged lien.

(B) The purchasers shall be required to assume and pay all taxes or assessments upon the property for the 2014 taxes, the current year and all subsequent years. All taxes or assessments upon the property for prior years shall be paid from the sale proceeds. The property shall further be sold subject to any delinquent State, County and/or city real estate taxes sold pursuant to the provisions of KRS Chapter 134 to any private purchaser during the pendency of this action.

(C) The property shall otherwise be sold free and clear of any right, title and interest of all parties to the action and of their liens and encumbrances thereon, and all existing liens recorded after the recording of the Plaintiff's Lis Pendens Notice, excepting and subject to however, easements, restrictions, stipulations and covenants of record in the Powell County Court Clerk's office, any facts which an inspection and accurate survey of the property may disclose and any assessments for public improvements levied against the property.

(D) Purchasers shall not be entitled to the possession of the real estate until the Court's confirmation of the sale and the payment in full of the purchaser price and delivery of the deed unless the Plaintiffs are the purchasers.

(E) Risk of loss of the improvements of the real property shall pass to the purchaser or purchasers at the time of sale. The successful bidders may, (unless otherwise stated at the end of a sale) from the date of sale until the purchase price is fully paid, carry fire and extended coverage insurance on the improvements on such property to the extent of the court appraised value of said improvements or the unpaid balance of the purchase price, whichever is less, with a loss clause payable to the Master Commissioner of the Powell Circuit Court.

(F) Upon default of the payment of the deposit or posting of bond by the purchaser, the Master Commissioner shall immediately re-sell the property upon the same terms and conditions set out herein.

(G) If the total purchase price is not paid in cash, the ten percent (10%) deposit made by the purchaser shall be applied to any expenses incurred by a default of the purchaser.

The event had been planned by the association as a way to develop more fellowship among the county's churches, to work together to pray and help the community. The music was provided by Grace Fellowship Church of God of Prophecy.

Robert Boyd, a Lay Minister at Grace Fellowship, delivered the devotional at this past Sunday's event. He spoke of how Christians need to take the time to put others first and do what God wants them to do to help others.

"There are times when we have to get ourselves out of the equation. Our wants, our desires and what we think, and do what God wants us to do," he said. "We need to spend our time, our money and whatever we have to reach out with love to our fellow man."

The "Praise in the Park" will be held on the first Sunday night of the summer and fall months, through October, beginning at 7 p.m. Churches will take turns providing the free food and drinks, they ask that people attending feel free to bring a dish to share.

A different church will provide the music and another the devotional each time.

The next "Praise in the Park" date will be announced so it will not be held during the Stanton Corn Festival.
